Faith, Family and Fortune:

CKJ Bunsen and his Gesangbuch (1833)

How did a hymnbook compiled by a Prussian diplomat to London – a crucial interdenominational intersection in the 19th century – come to be so significant for 20th century Australian Lutherans (many translated by Catherine Winkworth) as they learned to sing their favourite German hymns in English? Dr Lorraine Macknight, a church organist and academic, will tell the story she found in researching the German contribution to Australian hymnody.
